Guidelines for Authors

The Galpin Society Journal [GSJ] welcomes contributions from members and non-members of the Galpin Society, although it is hoped that all contributors will join the Society if they are not already members.

PLEASE READ THESE GUIDELINES CAREFULLY AND ENSURE YOUR DRAFT COMPLIES FULLY. This will save a lot of time and work if the article is accepted.

N.B. Authors should always consult www.galpinsociety.org for the latest version of these Guidelines.

1. Subject Matter
   1.1 Articles must conform to the objectives of the Society and should therefore be: ORIGINAL RESEARCH INTO THE HISTORY, CONSTRUCTION AND FUNCTIONS OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
   1.2 A key requirement is that musical instruments are the principal focus of the article.
   1.3 Articles whose main focus is on music or aspects of performance are usually better placed elsewhere.
   1.4 Originality is crucial. The readership of GSJ does not generally require or value summaries or surveys of published material, though exceptions to this may occur when instruments are very little known within scholarly literature and where such matter provides essential background or context for new facts or analysis.

2. The First Step
   2.1 Intending contributors should discuss the subject matter of their article with the Editor (Authors) whose contact details will be found on the inside front cover of this Journal.
   2.2 The Editor can advise authors on GSJ house style and practice.
   2.3 When submitting an article, the author must inform the editor whether the work has been submitted for publication elsewhere or in another format (e.g. for a conference).

3. Deadline for Submissions
   3.1 The deadline for articles for the next issue of GSJ (Volume LXXVII, 2024) is 1 June 2023.
   3.2 Material for Volume LXXVII will not be accepted after this date.
   3.3 Authors are strongly encouraged to contact the editor as soon as they consider they may have something to publish, and to send their material as soon as possible.

4. Referees (Peer Review)
   4.1 In order that the GSJ should maintain the highest standards of scholarship, every article (including those intended for Notes & Queries, which may be shorter or less formal) will be sent to at least one referee with relevant expertise.
   4.2 Referees’ comments are taken into account when deciding whether an article will be accepted.
5. LENGTH, STYLE AND FORMAT

5.1 Articles should normally be no longer than 20,000 words including footnotes. Shorter articles are preferred. Lengthy backup data can be accommodated on the Society’s website.

5.2 Articles must be submitted in a completed form, not in a provisional arrangement, nor as notes.

5.4 Articles must be submitted in English. Authors should consult a recent volume of this journal for examples of acceptable style.

5.5 Authors who are not accustomed to publishing in journals of this nature are also recommended to read Trevor Herbert, Music in Words (London: ABRSM, 2001).

5.6 Drafts should be submitted in a standard font such as Times New Roman (12pt for main text, 10pt for footnotes). Use as little text formatting as possible. Automated numbering systems for Figures and Tables, as well as automated bibliographies linked to footnotes, should not be used.

5.7 Texts should be submitted in a recent version of Microsoft Word or similar, in either PC or Apple Mac format (both formats are used in the production of GSJ), but please consult the editor before submitting text in any file format other than Microsoft Word (.doc or .docx).

5.8 All formatting should be kept to a minimum – avoid systems of section headings, underlining, indents, bold, italics etc. Only essential formatting should be used.

5.9 Use en-dashes for all page references and number and date ranges (e.g. 1795–1854).

5.10 Single space after a full stop (period).

5.11 No space between quantities and units, e.g. 14mm; 2.5Kg; 415Hz.

5.12 Numbers one to ten should be given in words, 11 and higher in numerals.

5.13 Approximate years are shown thus: c1657, c1969, not as c.1657, ca. 1969 etc.

5.14 Quoted material must be clearly identified.

5.15 When referring to note names, the following system is preferred:

5.16 FOOTNOTES

5.16.1 Notes will appear as footnotes in the published version of the Journal; they should be presented as footnotes (not endnotes) in the author’s draft.

5.16.2 Authors should avoid referring to footnotes by number because these numbers may change during successive drafts.

5.16.4 Lengthy footnotes should be avoided; such matter should be incorporated within the main text, or presented in a table or appendix. Footnotes longer than three lines or three sentences may be rejected.

5.16.5 There should be no footnote markers within titles, headings, figure captions or tables. Please consult the editor on how to add supplementary information.
5.17 REFERENCES

5.17.1 Authors may detail the sources for their references either in footnotes or in a separate bibliography at the end of the article, but a bibliography is usually unnecessary.

5.17.2 If necessary, bibliographies can be accommodated on the Society’s website.

5.17.3 The Oxford Guide to Style (see 5.3 above), provides detailed guidance about the formatting of reference sources. Examples of the format to be used:

5.17.4 After the first full reference, use the format: author (date), page reference.

5.17.5 Always use the latest edition of any reference work, unless particular material is only available in the earlier edition.

6. INFORMATION FROM THE INTERNET

6.1 A large amount of useful information exists on the World Wide Web, but the stability of URLs (web addresses) is highly variable and even institutional websites are routinely re-organised, so it is common for web addresses to become invalid by the time they are published, or soon after.

6.2 Authors should therefore avoid giving URLs as sources unless this is unavoidable.

6.3 Drafts should not include any active hyperlinks – please ensure there are none.

7. SUBMITTING AN ARTICLE

7.1 Articles that cannot be submitted in electronic form will not normally be accepted.

7.2 Articles that have been submitted elsewhere, are in the process of peer review, or have been accepted for publication by another publisher will not be considered for publication in the GSJ.

7.3 Email is used for most GSJ communications so article files are best submitted this way (please notify the editor if your system has any size limits for email attachments).

7.4 N.B. for internet security reasons, any attachments received without prior agreement may be deleted unopened.

7.5 Alternatively, drafts may be sent on a CD or DVD which should bear the author’s name, address, and precise details of software used.

7.6 If you receive no acknowledgement within 2 weeks of sending a first draft, it has probably not arrived, so enquiries should be made.

7.7 The article text, captions and any figures should be submitted as separate files.

7.8 Authors whose articles are accepted will be asked to provide a personal profile and an abstract, both of which will be printed in the journal. Each should use fewer than 200 words.

7.9 The abstract will be sent to RILM, whose website should be consulted for guidance on style and content. www.rilm.org/submissions/index.html → see ‘guidelines for writing abstracts’

8. ILLUSTRATIONS – CAPTIONS – COLOUR

8.1 Authors should discuss any proposed illustrations with the editor at an early stage.

8.2 The incorporation of illustrations is encouraged, but they should be used only when they are necessary, not just because they are available. Colour should be used only when essential.

8.3 All non-text matter including illustrations, graphs, diagrams, photographs etc is to be called a Figure; the only exception is tables, which are called Tables.
8.4 All Figures, both colour and monochrome, should be numbered in a single sequence in the order they appear in the article text. Each one should be referred to explicitly within the text.

8.5 All sources of illustrations must be stated, and a copy of the permission to reproduce the material must be sent with the illustration. N.B. permissions do not always include use on the www.

8.5.1 The author is responsible for arranging permissions and for the payment of any copyright/reproduction fees. Permission should include publication in our journal (print run of 600), in addition to future access through the online provider JSTOR.

8.6 Even if permission has been granted, Figures should not be reproduced directly from other publications as the quality will be inadequate.

8.7 All Figures should be sent separately from the text in a file or files which should be listed at the end of the text or in a separate file.

8.8 All Figures, including diagrams, tables, graphs, charts and photographs, should be submitted with filenames that include their Figure number and some element of description.

8.9 The position where each Figure would be most usefully placed should be marked clearly within the text (for example: Figure 3. Broken mouthpiece... near here).

8.10 A full caption must be supplied for each Figure.

8.10.1 Captions should include any reproduction authorisation, and indicate the source, content and relevance of the Figure.

8.11 Images may be sent in an electronic format (see below) or as camera-ready copy, or as photographic prints, negatives or transparencies.

8.12 For all image files, resolution should be as high as possible, preferably at least 300dpi.

8.13 The file formats TIFF, PSD, PDF or JPG are acceptable.

8.14 For colour files, 600dpi CMYK tiff is best; grayscale is used for all monochrome images.

8.15 Graphs or tables created in Excel must be sent as Excel files, not embedded in a Word document. Please do not use any effects such as ‘drop shadow’ or colour (including for backgrounds).

8.16 Other Figures such as photographs must be sent as individual files, in addition to which they may be sent in a Word document for the purpose of indicating layout.

8.17 Diagrams presented as files generated by AutoCad are often problematic and are best avoided; they are best sent as hard copy, which will be scanned.

8.18 A section of the journal is devoted to high quality colour illustrations, but tables and graphs within the main text must not use colour or have any coloured or shaded areas. Any Figures that are to be placed within the text and include colour or shaded areas may be returned to the author for revision.

8.19 All colours other than black should be eliminated from all text, captions, footnotes, lists, tables, graphs, diagrams and web addresses before submitting the draft.

8.20 If requested, photographs and original illustrations will be returned to authors.

9. COPYRIGHT – OFFPRINTS

9.1 The copyright of any article in the form published in the GSJ lies jointly with the Society and the author. The major objective of the Galpin Society is the publication of the Galpin Society Journal; this is by far the Society’s largest expense. It is vital for the continued existence of the Society that it receives any income generated by the articles published in the GSJ. Authors should not allow their article to be published in this form elsewhere, including on the world wide web, except with the express permission of the Society. Allowing such publication could be detrimental to the financial health of the Society and in the long term to its existence.

9.2 All authors will receive a copy of their article, together with any colour illustrations, in electronic format (pdf). These are good quality, and can be presented in lieu of paper offprints.
9.3 Authors may purchase one or more copies of the journal. They will be available from the administrator at the standard membership rate and, to ensure that sufficient copies are printed, they must be ordered no later than the January preceding publication.

9.4 No article may be reproduced on any website without the prior permission of the editor.

9.5 Open Access: Any author requiring Open Access is strongly advised to consult the editor. A fee of £500 will be payable to the Galpin Society at the time of publication. Any author applying for research funding who is required to make their published outcomes Open Access should include this £500 fee in their funding application.

9.5.1 Once an article has been accepted for publication, a preliminary version of it may be placed in an institutional repository, but it must be removed at the time the article is published.

9.5.2 Authors who are required by the terms of their contract of employment or by the terms of their research funding to make their article Open Access, are allowed to deposit the final published version of their article in their institutional repository on the understanding that full acknowledgement is made to the Galpin Society and the Journal, including the year of publication and the volume number in which the article appears. The web address of the Galpin Society home page should also be given.

9.5.3 Any article by any author can be made Open Access on the Society’s website on payment to the Galpin Society of the £500 fee; this payment covers both deposition in an institutional repository and publication on the Society’s website.

10. BOOK REVIEWS

10.1 The Reviews Editor (see inside front cover for contact details) is always pleased to receive books which are about musical instruments or have sections devoted to them.

10.2 The Reviews Editor is also pleased to accept offers to review books, though an offer to review a specific work will not necessarily be accepted.

10.3 Reviews should not normally be longer than 2,000 words, though a longer review may be accepted by agreement with the Reviews Editor.

10.4 Footnotes are discouraged for reviews, therefore we require short but unambiguous references to be included within the text of the review.

10.5 Reviews that are intended for publication in GSJ LXXVII (2024) should be received by the Reviews Editor by 1 September 2023.

10.6 Reviewers will receive their review as a pdf in the form it is printed in the journal.

10.7 Reviewers are allowed to retain the copy of the book that they have reviewed.

10.8 A reviewer who has not provided their review by the deadline agreed with the Reviews Editor may be asked to return the book so that it may be reviewed by another person.
